“Daddy Happy birthday I love you and I miss driving with you wish you was here and just wanted to hope in the car with me so I could do burn outs and slam my sounds and see you looking at me like that's how you used to do it. I miss you so much that I just want to go for a drive and do a burn out just for you. I'm hurting right now cause I can't ask you if I should do that or that just to here what you say. I wanna make de scission's and hear what you think. I keep thinking of what's my steps and feeling lost like my choices just wasn't the right answers. I just want to hear from u or feel your up lift that I'm doing alright. I love you and I just want to hear you love me too I know I'm hurting but I know Kev jr. Is hurting most he's hiding it and only released in blank expressions it's hard to think that your away as the days your gone just gets harder as life goes along but we won't ever forget you. Love you daddy and that's forever from when it "barely legal" your saying to now that it feel barely living without my daddy. I'll rolling barely legit till I we bond again. Lighting candles for you and going give it "onetime" before the night ends keep rolling

“ I had only 3 glorious days with you, my dear cousin Kevin. But, I feel blessed indeed, to have been able to meet you again after over 35 years. I will remember always the brief time we shared with pickled mangos, jokes that never ended and the t-shirt that I will treasure forever. Rest peacefully my dear precious cousin.

with all my love, MaraLynn
